GERMANS WARN AMERICAN SHIPS TO BE CAREFUL

Merchant Vessels Should Obey Commands From Nazi Patrols

CONVOY DANGER CITED

London Claims Berlin Has Threatened Mauretania With Attack

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The German government's warning that all American merchant ships in the vicinity of Great Britain and France will be searched for contraband, was relayed today to all steamship lines by the U. S. Maritime Commission.

The Nazi government's warning also advised American merchant ships should not zig-zag, screen their lights, accept British and French naval convoys, or fail to obey the command of German naval ships to stop.

The notice to American shipping, transmitted to the navy department by the maritime commission, said:

"Neutral merchant ships have repeatedly attempted in the waters around France and England, to evade the exercise of the right of the German naval forces, granted by international law, of stopping and search. Besides, they have repeatedly aroused suspicion of attack or unneutral acts, by improper behavior.

To Prevent Confusion

"The government of the Reich therefore begs to call the attention of American merchant vessels traveling into the waters mentioned to the fact that, in their own interests, and in order to prevent confusion with naval or auxiliary ships of the enemy, especially at night, they should avoid any suspicious behavior, particularly change of course and use of the radio apparatus upon sighting German naval forces, zig-zagging, screening lights, failing to obey a demand to stop and the acceptance of convoy by naval forces of the powers at war with Germany."

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 3.—A widespread search was launched today for the German sea raider which shelled and sank the 5,051-ton British freighter Clement off the Brazilian coast.

SENATE DEBATE POSTPONED DAY BY LOGAN DEATH

Both Sides Of Vital Fight Arrange Meetings To Map Strategy

BORAH'S SPEECH MIGHTY

Replacement Bill Includes Continuance Of Present Neutrality Act

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Senate opponents of the administration arms embargo repeal today began drafting a substitute bill. The proposal embodies these points:

Continuance of the present arms embargo.

Put the sale of non-war commodities on cash-carry basis.

Drastic regulation of American commerce when hostilities exist abroad.

Both sides scheduled strategy meetings after the death of Senator Logan, Kentucky, postponed renewal of debate on the bill until tomorrow.

The leaders of the senate were notified of Logan's death by Leslie Biffle, secretary to the majority. Logan and Senate Majority Leader Barkley are from the same state.

In the opening combat Senator Borah (R) Idaho, opposition leader, charged that the New Deal bill would ultimately send American youth to the "slaughter pens of Europe," and the administration neutrality leader, Senator Pittman (D) Nevada, told his colleagues the arms embargo was neutral, that its repeal would even the scales of international justice among combatant nations of Europe, and staunchly maintain American neutrality and peace.

57 Pledges Claimed

Borah's followers massed behind their leader with predictions his aggressive attack on the administration position would win vital votes for the opposition cause. Senator Nye (R) North Dakota, challenged the New Deal claims of 57 "pledged votes" for embargo repeal with a poll of his own.

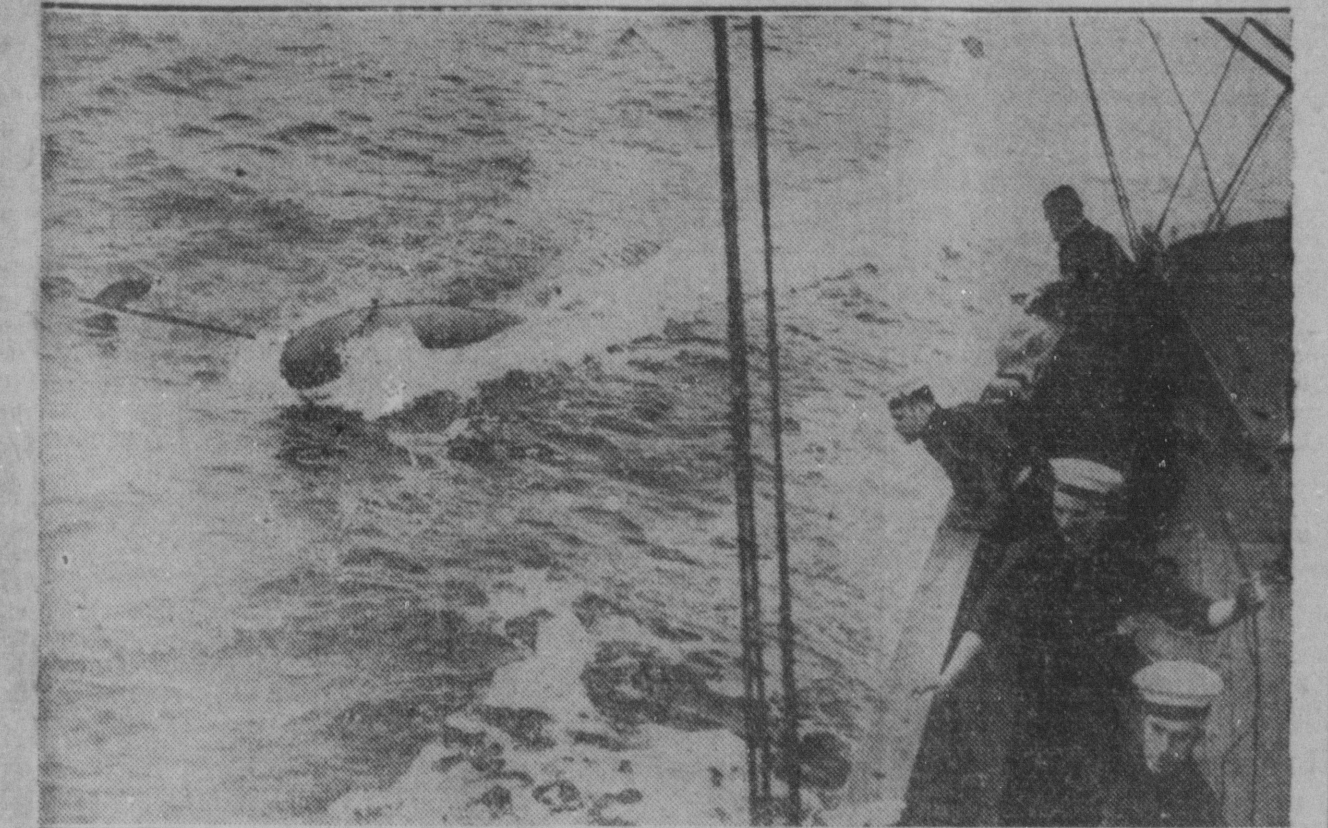

According to Nye's poll, only 35 votes are today pledged for the administration bill. He added that there were 26 votes in the senate pledged against repeal, another 13 definitely leaning toward the opposition forces, and 22 doubtful.

Pittman and other administration leaders denied these claims, and said their lines were holding. They continued to predict that when the roll is called on senate (Continued on Page Six)

RT. 22 OPENING FOR FALL SHOW IS UP TO STATE

Discussion of the probable opening of Route 22 during the Pumpkin Show occupied time of the Chamber of Commerce in session Tuesday noon. C. F. Replogle, representing the contracting firm, told the assemblage that the contractor is favorable to the opening plan, but that the ultimate decision is up to the state.

Due to the fact that the road improvement will not be complete and certain traffic hazards will exist, Mr. Replogle said that traffic officers would be necessary during the temporary opening. A committee of the Chamber of Commerce is to be appointed to seek state approval for the opening of the road and to obtain state highway workers to aid in enforcing all necessary traffic safety measures.

Work on the highway will be considerably hindered during the open period and contractor's representatives declared that as soon as the Pumpkin Show ends that the road will be closed once more in order to permit completion of the work within specified time.

In addition to Mr. Replogle, John Frisinger, of the contracting firm of Lewis & Frisinger, also was present at the meeting which was held at the Coffee Shop.

JAPANESE SAY CHINESE LEAVE THOUSANDS DEAD

SHANGHAI, Oct. 3.—Japanese army sources claimed today that 19 Chinese troop divisions trapped near Changsha, capital of Hunan province, have been annihilated. The Chinese left 10,000 dead on the battlefield, but their actual casualties were much greater, the Japanese claimed.

Reports received in Shanghai said Soviet Russia has been sending large bodies of troops into China's Sinkiang province. Neutral circles in Shanghai speculated whether the Soviets would be sent against British India or whether they would aid the Chinese against Japan.

BERLIN, Oct. 3.—The Reichstag session at which Hitler delivers his "peace or war" ultimatum was fixed for noon Friday or Saturday.

Regardless of other terms, it can be assumed that Hitler will propound the principle that the map of southeastern Europe is a matter for Russo-German adjustment. Germany is believed "laying down the law" to Turkey.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 3

—The report that Prince Janusz Radziwill, scion of one of the oldest Polish aristocratic families, was murdered in Wolhynia, Poland, because of his "political views," was received today.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—In blunt and vigorous terms Prime Minister Chamberlain today rejected any peace imposed on Britain and France by Russo-German threats.

"No threat will ever induce Britain or France to abandon the purpose for which we entered upon this struggle," said Chamberlain. "No more assurances from German government could be accepted by us."

"Nobody desires war to continue for an unnecessary day, but overwhelming mass opinion in this country and France is determined to secure that the rule of violence shall cease and that words of governments, once pledged, must be kept."

That Chamberlain would reject the German "peace offer" as so far broadened—that is, on a basis of the partition of Poland—was a foregone conclusion.

WESTERN FRONT BECOMES TENSE

Paris Reports Numerous Activities On Both Sides Of Lines

PARIS, Oct. 3—Under the thunder of a heavy German artillery barrage, the Saar sector of the Western Front seethed with activity today as both French and German forces intensified preparations for the major struggle to come.

French official war communiques No. 59 announced:

"There was great activity by patrols on both sides during the night."

This activity was presumed to be a renewal, on a larger scale, of the reconnaissance maneuvers and tentative probings of the opposing lines, in which each side is trying to feel out the strong and weak points of the other.

The Germans, trying desperately to stem the steady French advance in the Saar valley between Saarbrücken and Zweibrücken (Deux Ponts), unleashed a heavy artillery bombardment of the German territory behind the advanced French positions.

The barrage was aimed apparently at smashing French reinforcements and communications with the main Maginot line.

Night Attacks Repulsed

It also was revealed that "local" night attacks by German troops were quickly repulsed by the French south of Saarbrücken, and in the area east of the Saar River.

The Nazi charges were made under the cover of a curtain of artillery fire, but as on previous occasions failed to dislodge the French from their well fortified, heavily armed advance positions.

The ferocity of the German counter-attacks were regarded as an indication that the French, advancing slowly against Metz and Saarbrücken, were approaching dangerously close to their objectives.

The French spearhead is aimed between the towns of Zweibrücken and Saarbrücken in an effort to outflank both towns so that

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 3

—The report that Prince Janusz Radziwill, scion of one of the oldest Polish aristocratic families, was murdered in Wolhynia, Poland, because of his "political views," was received today.

LONDON, Oct. 3—In blunt and vigorous terms Prime Minister Chamberlain today rejected any peace imposed on Britain and France by Russo-German threats.

"No threat will ever induce Britain or France to abandon the purpose for which we entered upon this struggle," said Chamberlain. "No more assurances from German government could be accepted by us."

"Nobody desires war to continue for an unnecessary day, but overwhelming mass opinion in this country and France is determined to secure that the rule of violence shall cease and that words of governments, once pledged, must be kept."

That Chamberlain would reject the German "peace offer" as so far broached—that is, on a basis of the partition of Poland—was a foregone conclusion.

Archbishop Speaks

An indication of the attitude of the government was seen in the speech last night of the Most Rev. William Temple, archbishop of York, who in a radio broadcast virtually called the war a holy crusade and termed England a "desecrated land."

ANOTHER BOOST IN POSTOFFICE RECEIPTS NOTED

Record Broken For Eighth Consecutive Month In Circleville

HAYS RECOMMISSIONED Master Retains Job As Of October 1 "Without Term"

For the eighth consecutive month this year Circleville's post-office continues to establish new records for postal receipts.

During September postal receipts amounted to $3,005.68, surpassing all records for the month in the last 10 years, A. Hulse Hays, postmaster, announced Tuesday.

Improved business conditions in general were advanced by Mr. Hays as the reason for the boost in postal business. He explained that the general improvement of business has resulted in heavier sales of stamps.

Figures for postal receipts for the month of September since 1929 are: 1929, $2,871.11; 1930, $2,778.72; 1931, $2,657.49; 1932, $2,487.39; 1933, $1,888.25; 1934, $2,384.34; 1935, $2,582.55; 1936, $2,489.82; 1937, $2,522.01, and 1938, $2,524.23.

Mr. Hays announced that he has been re-commissioned as Circleville postmaster, without term. Mr. Hays said his commission was dated August 2, 1939 but was not received until early in September. He started his new term of office as of October 1.

Mr. Hays was appointed acting postmaster and took charge of the Circleville office on November 1, 1933. He was commissioned a postmaster on January 30, 1934 to serve a four year term. Although his term expired last year he continued to serve as postmaster as appointments were delayed due to changes in laws.

CASTINGS FIRM BOOSTS OUTPUT, CALLS 450 MEN

For Tuesday, October 3

A DAY of splendid initiative and opportunity is the augury based on an interesting chain of planetary configurations. The energies and faculties will be found under high creative impulses, with the ambitions keen and the spirit of adventure quickened. New propositions and projects progress by leaps and bounds under such impetus, with employers, elders and superiors lending generous support. It is a time for pushing to major objectives with audacity and confidence, although it would be well to have an eye to petty treacheries.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of unusual enterprise and highly-stimulated forces and faculties, with new ventures of importance likely to "go over big" under high-pressure promotion and with the co-operation of elders, superiors and those of influence and prestige. Aim at high goals but be careful in handling contracts and writings, and be alert to trivial duplicities. Promotion and friendship in high places are seen.

A child born on this day may be energetic, resourceful, determined and audacious, winning the confidence of its superiors. Its friendly genial and generous disposition will enhance its success and standing.

BITES ARRANGED FOR MUNDELEIN

Body Of Church Leader To Lie In State Until Friday Morning

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Solemn preparations went forward today for the burial of George Cardinal Mundelein, archbishop of the vast Roman Catholic archdiocese of Chicago and first cardinal of the West.

Cardinal Mundelein, who was 67 years old, died in his sleep yesterday morning of a heart attack. His body was found at 7:45 a. m. by his personal secretary, the Very Rev. Msgr. Patrick J. Hayes, in bed in his home at St. Mary of the Lake Seminary, Mundelein, Ill.

Plans today were almost completed for the final rites and funeral.

The body, which will be interred in a crypt in the chapel of the Immaculate Conception at the Mundelein seminary, will lie in state in the Holy Name Cathedral—mother church of the Chicago archdiocese—from tonight until the morning of Friday, the funeral day.

Then, as the bells of Holy Name peal their first requiem for a prince of the church, thousands on thousands of mourners of all creeds and all stations in life will file past the candlelit catafalque on which the body will lie throughout the rites.

More than 100 bishops and 22 archbishops and possibly the two remaining Cardinals of America—William O'Connell of Boston and Dennis Dougherty of Philadelphia—will be in the sanctuary of the cathedral to pay their final respect to a fellow member of the hierarchy.

FILM NEWCOMER TURNS OUT NEW LIPSTICK I D E A

HOLLYWOOD. — Brenda Joyce is letting no grass grow under her dainty feet in Hollywood.

The erstwhile co-ed who was catapulted to stardom in five brief months by Darryl F. Zanuck, 20th Century-Fox production chief, has come up with a new idea in lipstick manufacture that has become the talk of her home lot.

She has given lipstick flavor. In collaboration with Clay Campbell, make-up head at the studio, and the House of Westmore, she has evolved a lipstick containing a flavor favored by the user.

She herself uses one now that has the tang of peppermint. Kay Aldridge, who appears in a featured role with Brenda in "Here I Am A Stranger," uses a lipstick with a lime flavor, while Lynn Bari and Kay Griffith, two of Brenda's closest friends on the lot, both are using lipstick that tastes of fresh orange.

The idea originated by the beautiful film newcomer, who made her film debut only a few months ago in "The Rains Came," has taken such hold on the 20th Century-Fox lot it is to be introduced to other studios immediately.

It took a special act of congress in 1861 to give Mary Edwards Walker, a dress reformer, the legal right to dress in male attire.

PETTENGILL

"The Gentleman from Indiana"

NEUTRALITY—REAL OR FAKE

As Congress and the country begin a momentous debate on "neutrality" we should at least be honest about it. We know other nations on both sides are trying to fool us. Let us not fool ourselves. Mr. Roosevelt has said, "This nation will remain a neutral nation." It is not necessary to raise any question of his sincerity in making this statement if you grant him the privilege of writing his own definition of a neutral nation. According to his definition the United States is "neutral" if when nations are at war we deliberately shape enemy of Germany. This is not "more than words and short of war." It is war itself. Our munitions plants will be as much engaged in war as the munitions plants of England and France. They will together supply the same army with the same tools of death.

Many people know this is so, but say they favor doing it just the same. These people you must respect. They are honest. They are not fooling themselves, nor trying to fool you.

If the neutrality act had never been passed, the case might be viewed differently. But it was passed by nearly unanimous vote of both Houses. Mr. Roosevelt signed the bill. The people approved the bill. It is the law of the land. It became such when the world was at peace. People may disagree as to its wisdom but it was a neutral act. It was directed at nobody. But with Europe at war, to change the act now, is not neutral. It makes America the commissary of one set of belligerents. And the change is proposed for that very purpose, and for no other purpose.

This is the weak point in Mr. Roosevelt's argument. People know that he is not neutral. They recall that he withdrew our ambassador to Berlin nearly a year ago; permitted a member of his cabinet to scold Mr. Hitler personally over the radio; raised import duties against Germany; delayed the Bremen and did all of these things when England and France were trying desperately to keep the world's peace.

So the lifting or retaining of the embargo on bombs has become the symbol of a much larger question—peace or war. Millions fear it is not the first step, but the next step toward war, to be followed by additional steps. Under another President there would not be the same hesitation over the embargo.

It is this that gives significance to Mr. Landon's suggestion that Mr. Roosevelt remove himself unequivocally from a third term. The chief answer to Mr. Roosevelt's argument is Mr. Roosevelt.

NEUTRALITY—REAL OR FAKE

As Congress and the country begin a momentous debate on "neutrality" we should at least be honest about it. We know other nations on both sides are trying to fool us. Let us not fool ourselves. Mr. Roosevelt has said, "This nation will remain a neutral nation." It is not necessary to raise any question of his sincerity in making this statement if you grant him the privilege of writing his own definition of a neutral nation. According to his definition the United States is "neutral" if when nations are at war we deliberately shape belligerents and to hurt their opponents.

But many millions of Americans do not accept this definition of neutrality. They say this is a mockery of words. They would show the true significance of such "neutrality" by asking this question:

"Mr. President, if the geographical positions of the belligerents were reversed, if Germany commanded the seas and had billions of gold, and France and England were in central Europe cut off by German blockade, would you call Congress in special session to legalize the sale of bombs?"

That is a fair question and deserves a square answer. The answer is that Mr. Roosevelt would do no such thing. He would not advocate the repeal of the embargo on the sale of bombs. If the geographical position of Germany and England were reversed, Mr. Roosevelt's position on "neutrality" would immediately be reversed. In one case he would change the law and sell bombs. In the other case he would leave the law as it is and not sell bombs.

Now everybody knows that this is the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. Then why go on fooling ourselves about "neutrality?" Mr. Roosevelt has no genuine intention of being honestly neutral. Everything he has done and said since he advocated the economic and military "sanctions" of the League of Nations, and the ratification of the Versailles Treaty when he was a candidate for Vice President in 1920 demonstrate beyond the shadow of a question that he wants to bring the United States to the support of England and France against Germany. He wanted to in his Chicago quarantine speech of October 1937, and he wants to now. That is why he has reconvened Congress.

Now a respectable argument can be made in favor of helping France and England. I will discuss that in another column. But if we do help, let us be honest about it. If we decide to make the United States a French and British arsenal let us do so without hypocrisy. If we fool ourselves so early in the game that what Mr. Roosevelt proposes is "neutrality" we advertise ourselves as suckers for whatever else comes next.

So at the threshold of this debate, let us nail one thing down. If we lift the embargo on bombs and the bombers to drop them, at that moment we enter the war. We become the allies of France and England. We become the enemy of Germany. This is not "more than words and short of war." It is war itself. Our munitions plants will be as much engaged in war as the munitions plants of England and France. They will together supply the same army with the same tools of death.

Many people know this is so, but say they favor doing it just the same. These people you must respect. They are honest. They are not fooling themselves, nor trying to fool you.

If the neutrality act had never been passed, the case might be viewed differently. But it was passed by nearly unanimous vote of both Houses. Mr. Roosevelt signed the bill. It is the law of the land. It became such when the world was at peace. People may disagree as to its wisdom but it was a neutral act. It was directed at nobody. But with Europe at war, to change the act now, is not neutral. It makes America the commissary of one set of belligerents. And the change is proposed for that very purpose, and for no other purpose.

This is the weak point in Mr. Roosevelt's argument. People know that he is not neutral. They recall that he withdrew our ambassador to Berlin nearly a year ago; permitted a member of his cabinet to scold Mr. Hitler personally over the radio; raised import duties against Germany; delayed the Bremen and did all of these things when England and France were trying desperately to keep the world's peace.

So the lifting or retaining of the embargo on bombs has become the symbol of a much larger question—peace or war. Millions fear it is not the first step, but the next step toward war, to be followed by additional steps. Under another President there would not be the same hesitation over the embargo.

It is this that gives significance to Mr. Landon's suggestion that Mr. Roosevelt remove himself unequivocally from a third term. The chief answer to Mr. Roosevelt's argument is Mr. Roosevelt.

William Hill, 19, Admits Two Charges, Held For Grand Jury

Attempt Made To Hide Identity Of Vehicles, Police Claim

Circleville police and the sheriff's department Monday cleared the thefts of two automobiles in Circleville during the last week with the arrest of two youths.

Under arrest are William Hill, 19, 159 Hayward Avenue, and Robert Shaffer, 14, Lancaster Pike.

Hill admitted two charges of auto theft before Mayor W. B. Cady and was bound to the grand jury under $1,000 bond on each charge. He was unable to provide bond. Shaffer will be given a hearing in Juvenile Court Thursday afternoon. Both are in the county jail.

The cars stolen were those of Gilbert Hedges of Tarlton and Frank Hollenbeck of Ashville. Hedges' car was stolen last Thursday night from West Main Street. The car was found Friday abandoned along the Chesapeake & Ohio tracks near the Sturm & Dillard plant. It was a 1936 Ford. One of the motor head had been removed.

The Hollenbeck car was stolen Saturday night from North Soloto Street. It was found abandoned Sunday morning near Fox. Two fenders and the interior had been damaged.

Officers spent practically the entire afternoon Monday taking the youths to various parts of the county where they had thrown out articles that were in the cars and accessories they had removed in the belief they would prevent identification of the cars.

Motor Head Sold

The motor head from the Hedges car had been sold for $2 and was on another automobile. It was recovered. The keys to the car and a jacket belonging to Hedges were recovered at the home where Shaffer lived, officers said. Some papers that were in the car were found along Route 23 in a ditch about five miles north of Circleville. A tennis racket was found along Route 104, west of the

License Plate in Woods

Officers found the rear license plate from the Hollenbeck car in a woods near the E. S. Thacher home in Jackson Township. The gasoline tank cap was found in a corn field near where the car was abandoned near Fox. An emblem attached to the rear tag was found near where the car was abandoned. Shields from the headlights, officers were told, were thrown away near Chillicothe. They were not recovered.

The youths told officers the fenders on the Hollenbeck car were damaged when the car struck a bridge near Chillicothe. One auto stolen Saturday night from Circleville is still missing. This is the car of Milton Manson, Lancaster Pike, taken from near Mr. Manson's home. The car is a Chevrolet coupe. The license number is X 7043.

48 hours, and which would be capable of flying across the Atlantic and back.

German factories have been perfecting this bomber ever since May and will have it in the air shortly. It is intended, not for raids across the Atlantic, but for raids against shipping over the Atlantic.

In other words, these new German bombers would be able to swing far out beyond Island along the routes of trans-Atlantic steamers and remain in the air for two days scouting for ships. If the bombers are all that Lindbergh expects them to be, they should put a terrific crimp in British shipping.

Another startling piece of information which Lindbergh dropped at the private senatorial lunch was that Germany was developing a pursuit plane capable of reaching 500 miles an hour. This plane would be able to chase an Allied plane out of the skies.

EUROPEAN AIR STRENGTH

Lindbergh also discussed at length the respective strength of the European air fleets. The Russian he brushed aside as not worth bothering about. Russia, he said, is turning out a lot of planes, but of poor quality.

German aviation, Lindbergh said, is now more than twice as strong as France and England combined. The French are slow and making poor progress, but the British, he said, are picking up and in six months should be abreast of the Germans. The quality of the new British planes is excellent, and they are not handicapped by lack of materials as are the Nazis.

Lindbergh said that the reason for the present British aerial inactivity was the fact that they could not risk an aerial showdown at present. Their air force is too weak. However, Lindbergh expects the German air force to deteriorate from now on because of difficulty in replacing both pilots and materials.

The United States, according to Lindbergh, soon will be in a position to equal the equality of Germany's planes. But it is backward in motor development, which the flying colonel attributes to lack of experimental laboratories.

LABOR BOARD PROBE

Edmund Toland, general counsel of the special House committee investigating the National Labor Relations Board, has a unique background with the agency which he is now investigating. He was attorney for six companies which had tangled with the Board on charges of law violation.

It so happens that five of the companies are contributors to the National Manufacturers Association, bitter foe of the NLRB. Toland also has represented the A. H. Arner Co. of St. Louis and the Industrial Standard Service, which are specialists in supplying detectives and other labor-trouble aid.

Toland was appointed counsel by Chairman Howard Smith of Virginia, who bitterly fought the Wagner Act when it was before Congress and last session sought to weaken it. Smith is credited with a secret plan to propose new legislation modeled after a recent British measure giving the government drastic control over labor organizations.

DOUBLE SPANKING

That press conference spanking the President administered to his two War Department lieutenants was no more amazing than the undercover episode that led up to it. This is the inside story of what happened:

Following the special Cabinet meeting, Secretary Woodring showed Roosevelt a copy of a new book on the mobilization of business for war. The book contained a preface by Assistant Secretary Louis Johnson, Woodring's hated rival. Roosevelt is touchy on the subject of war plans while the embargo issue is before Congress, and he didn't like the Johnson dedication. This was just what Woodring wanted. He urged Roosevelt to make it clear that Johnson had acted without official approval, and suggested that the press conference would provide an opportunity.

The President agreed and Woodring, a-twitter with glee over the fast one he had put over on his dynamic subordinate, rushed to the office of White House Secretary Steve Early to arrange for a newspaperman to ask a question of Roosevelt at the press conference that would enable Roosevelt to rebuke Johnson.

Early is a friend of Johnson's, wasn't very enthusiastic about helping Woodring. But orders were orders. He told Woodring to dictate the question and he would see that it was given to a newspaperman.

The correspondent picked for the job agreed to do it, but as he was going into the President's office, he discovered to his dismay that he didn't know the name of the book. However, he managed to make the question sufficiently clear so that Roosevelt got the cue. Roosevelt responded, but not as Woodring had expected.

The President slapped the Secretary of War as well as the Assistant Secretary. With emphasis, Roosevelt revealed that Woodring had tattled on his subordinate and that he was miffed at both of them.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Senator Pittman virtually gave the State Department an ultimatum that he would handle the neutrality bill in the Senate or else not handle it at all. He spurned all help from the outside. . . . Real fact is that razor-tongued Tom Connally of Texas has agreed to do the legislative interference. Also astute Jimmy Byrnes of South Carolina has been doing the backstage lineup of votes. . . . Powerful support for the reappointment of Tom Woodward to the Maritime Commission is coming from Roosevelt's uncle, Frederic Delano, and from certain shipping interests, Roosevelt had made up his mind to reappoint Woodward, but struck a snag in the opposition of Senator Guffey. . . . It is highly unlikely that any Soviet ships were sunk by submarines in the neighborhood of Estonia. It is more probable that the Russians were merely looking for an excuse to seize Estonia. . . . Many of our rural folk were contacted about the wheat seeding operations on the farm and all told us the same thing: "Either at it or will be very soon." More rain, though, would have been much better, they said. And the corn. Loads of it, the corn-picker kind, was brought to the grain elevator here Monday. This "corn-picker kind" we refer to, seems to carry with it an abundance of husks but which in weight, amounts to but little, and goes through without a grumble.

Miss Vernadine LeMay, Grade One teacher here, with her sister Mrs. Ralph Cloud and little Miss Mary Lou Cloud, spent over the week end at Indianapolis, where John and Ralph Cloud are completing a dwelling plastering job. The visitors said they attended services Sunday at the Cadle tabernacle.

More are yet coming along for their drivers' licenses, some more than 25 being issued Monday. Saturday was the one big day of them all, a "steady stream" being served from early morning until late in the evening. In all 1250 have been sold with a good prospect of reaching around 1500 within the next few weeks.

About 14 inches in length is the longest ear of corn brought in to the Grove & Rhodes sales room to date and if we have it right the owner was Walter Sawyer of Lockbourne territory. Others were near as long but not quite. So you, all of you, have a standing invitation to bring in the very longest or finest ear of corn you can find. While no one has said so, we feel sure a premium will be awarded for the best entry.

The Hook machine was considerably damaged. No one injured.

The village council was in session Monday evening with the mayor and four of the six members of the body present. Bills were allowed. Both civil engineers, Frank Baum, M. C. Chamberlain, were present, the first named with near completed plans for the building of the park shelter house. Bids will be taken soon for its erection.

Cigarettes were compared recently... sixteen of the largest-selling brands... under the searching tests of impartial laboratory scientists. Findings were announced as follows:

1. CAMELS were found to contain MORE TOBACCO BY WEIGHT than the average for the 15 other of the largest-selling brands.
2. CAMELS BURNED SLOWER THAN ANY OTHER BRAND TESTED—25% SLOWER THAN THE AVERAGE TIME OF THE 15 OTHER OF THE LARGEST-SELLING BRANDS! Burning 25% slower, equivalent of 5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK!

Many of our rural folk were contacted about the wheat seeding operations on the farm and all told us the same thing: "Either at it or will be very soon." More rain, they said. And the corn. Loads of it, the corn-picker kind, was brought to the grain elevator here Monday. This "corn-picker kind" we refer to, seems to carry with it an abundance of husks but which in weight, amounts to but little, and goes through without a grumble.

Miss Vernadine LeMay, Grade One teacher here, with her sister Mrs. Ralph Cloud and little Miss Mary Lou Cloud, spent over the week end at Indianapolis, where John and Ralph Cloud are completing a dwelling plastering job. The visitors said they attended services Sunday at the Cadle tabernacle.

More are yet coming along for their drivers' licenses, some more than 25 being issued Monday. Saturday was the one big day of them all, a "steady stream" being served from early morning until late in the evening. In all 1250 have been sold with a good prospect of reaching around 1500 within the next few weeks.

About 14 inches in length is the longest ear of corn brought in to the Grove & Rhodes sales room to date and if we have it right the owner was Walter Sawyer of Lockbourne territory. Others were near as long but not quite. So you, all of you, have a standing invitation to bring in the very longest or finest ear of corn you can find. While no one has said so, we feel sure a premium will be awarded for the best entry.

Charles Stevens, Columbus, whose automobile collided with that of G. A. Hook, the daughter Fanny at the wheel, Saturday evening on 23, near the home of Edward Wright, appeared in Squire Sherm Hoover's court Monday evening and pleaded guilty to not observing a stop sign and was fined ten dollars and costs which he paid and was dismissed. The Hook machine was considerably damaged. No one injured.

The village council was in session Monday evening with the mayor and four of the six members of the body present. Bills were allowed. Both civil engineers, Frank Baum, M. C. Chamberlain, were present, the first named with near completed plans for the building of the park shelter house. Bids will be taken soon for its erection.

FRIENDLY ENEMIES

It's batting power vs. pitching skill when Joe DiMaggio and "Bucky" Walters meet face to face in the World Series. But they agree on smoking—they're both Camel fans!

Whatever price you pay per pack, it's important to remember this fact: By burning 25% slower than the average of the 15 other of the largest-selling brands tested—slower than any of them—Camels give a smoking plus equal to

5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK

LEADING BOTH LEAGUES in hitting—the great Joe DiMaggio. Can "Bucky" Walters stop him? Joe's a tough customer any time...an old hand at this World Series business...been in three World Series...batting for an average of .301. And Joe's a stone wall on the defense. Whether Joe or "Bucky" comes out on top, a Camel fan wins either way. "I'm often asked about my favorite cigarette brand," Joe says. "Well, it's Camels. Camels are long-burning. They give me the economy of extra smoking per pack—a real saving if you're a steady smoker like I am—they're milder, with a hearty flavor. I'd walk a mile for a Camel!"

Cigarettes were compared recently...sixteen of the largest-selling brands...under the searching tests of impartial laboratory scientists. Findings were announced as follows:

1. CAMELS were found to contain MORE TOBACCO BY WEIGHT than the average for the 15 other of the largest-selling brands.
2. CAMELS BURNED SLOWER THAN ANY OTHER BRAND TESTED—25% SLOWER THAN THE AVERAGE TIME OF THE 15 OTHER OF THE LARGEST-SELLING BRANDS! By burning 25% slower, on the average, Camels give smokers the equivalent of 5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK!
3. In the same tests, CAMELS HELD THEIR ASH FAR LONGER than the average time for all the other brands. Don't deny yourself the pleasure of smoking Camels, the quality cigarette every smoker can afford.

"BUCKY" WALTERS...No. 1 pitcher of the National League...a hitter likely at any time to win his own ball game in the batter's box...It will be one of the big moments in the history of baseball when Walters and the Cincinnati Reds meet Joe DiMaggio and his New York Yankee team-mates. "Bucky" calls himself a "died-in-the-wool Camel fan." He says: "I've never found any other brand—at any price—that gives me anything like the downright smoking enjoyment that I get from Camels. Boy, do they taste good after a long, hard game! Camels burn longer, and that means a nice bonus of extra smokes in every pack."

SMOKERS:
SAVE THE COST OF THE STATE CIGARETTE TAX

Smokers who live in communities where certain state cigarette taxes are in effect can save the cost of the tax—and, in some instances, more—through smoking Camels. (See panel at left.) CIVILIAN SPY-HUNTERS

THE sheriff of Kings County, N. Y., has announced the formation of a civilian group to combat subversive activities in Brooklyn. It is said that more than 3,000 persons have applied for membership in this body.

Their duty will be to report subversive meetings to the sheriff's office or to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The group that attended the first meeting of this volunteer organization included civic leaders, business executives, representatives of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, volunteer firemen and members of the police reserve. Membership is open to all citizens of Brooklyn regardless of race, color, creed or sex.

Here is an obviously well-intentioned movement, but one which needs to be directed with the greatest care. The sheriff has cautioned members not to be "snoopers", but no clear definition seems to have been given of a "subversive meeting." A vigilante group may go too far and enthusiastic patriots exceed instructions when the instructions are so vague.

INLAND AMERICAN VOYAGE

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON, on his "Inland Voyage" through France, and J. K. Jerome's "Three Men in a Boat" in England were pikers, not to be classed with Mrs. E. B. Clegg of British Columbia. Mrs. Clegg, who is a grandmother, is traveling by water across the United States. She started from Portland, Ore., and expects to reach New York City before winter.

She chose an outboard motor boat for her voyage, and has a navigator to handle it. She camps at night and takes movies by day, and is having a leisurely look at a great part of this country. From Louisville, Ky., where she landed in September, Mrs. Clegg is proceeding toward the Metropolis via the Ohio River, the Allegheny, the New York State Barge Canal, and the Hudson River.

Such a trip stirs the imagination. A general interest in our American waterways should not be hard to cultivate. Flood prevention and soil conservation have already turned attention that way. There is a growing movement to end river pollution and to restore to the long-abused streams their natural beauty and cleanliness. Books about the Kennebec and Upper Mississippi, the Suwannee and Powder rivers have appeared in the American River Series, and other volumes are to follow.

It would be fine if Mrs. Clegg's voyage hastened these developments and introduced more of us to our many and lovely national streams.

Belowstairs did turn to coffee and the morning prints, first reading the for and against arguments in the congress on proposed alteration of the neutrality act. Everyone should read all of those arguments, for the decision of our congressmen on the bill probably will spell peace or war. My stand is opposed to a change although I have tried honestly to see both sides of the question. So far, the only argument I have heard in favor of a change is that the present law works a hardship on England and France. That and the fact that the present law is not strong enough. Well, why not put teeth in the present law and continue prohibiting shipment of the instruments of death in American ships. Also put into full force the cash and carry system. I'm in favor of cash, remembering that all we got out of the last World War was the dubious honor of financing it.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN,

HOOVER MAY HEAD NEW AGENCY

WASHINGTON—Don't be surprised if Herbert Hoover comes back into the international food relief picture with the expressed blessing of his political enemy, Franklin Roosevelt.

Conversations to this effect have been taking place behind the scenes during the past week. They originated when friends of the ex-President began flooding the White House, Red Cross, and Jewish refugee committees with suggestions urging that Hoover head a new international relief set-up.

Those close to the White House had no idea that Roosevelt would respond, since there has been no love lost between the President and the ex-President. Advisers were amazed, however, when Roosevelt took the idea under serious consideration.

He suggested, in turn, that Mr. Hoover outline a definite plan. A great many ideas for war relief have flooded Washington with nothing concrete about them except that Mr. Hoover should take over the reins. None of them has been very practical, partly because only one country, Poland, is suffering and it is impossible geographically to reach it.

Those around the White House could not be sure whether the President was passing the buck back to Hoover, or whether he welcomed the idea of securing his services. Anyway that was what he did.

NOTE—It will be recalled that when the United States entered the World War, ex-President Theodore Roosevelt offered his services to the United States to head an immediate military expedition to France. Woodrow Wilson, whose relations with T. R. were comparable to those between F. D. R. and Hoover, was much embarrassed and vetoed Teddy's offer.

HOOVER VS. MOLEY

It is not supposed to be known, but when Professor Moleys articles, highly critical of Roosevelt, first appeared in The Saturday Evening Post, Herbert Hoover sent word that he hoped the President would answer them.

Hoover asserted that in the part of the articles pertaining to him, Hoover, Moley had made 22 grievous errors, and that he would like to make a public statement to that effect.

Roosevelt sent word back that he didn't think it was a good idea to dignify the articles with a reply. He said that Moley was fond of quoting Elizabethan poets, but that there was one quotation which Moley did not use. This was:

"Kings may love treason, but the traitor hate."

Belittling Dangers of the Teething Age

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

MOTHERS have instilled in their minds the idea that there is a so-called teething age for babies. This goes with a belief that the erupting of teeth is the cause of many baby ailments.

Fifty years or more ago the doctors turned over the care of the baby from the time it was born to the grandmother or some female in the neighborhood who had a reputation for being good with babies.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

These excellent ladies were efficacious but not very scientific, and the teething age idea was one of their most cherished beliefs.

The interest in children from the medical standpoint is of quite recent development. The first book on diseases of children which had any scientific standing was published during the present century. Interest in children and all their problems has grown rapidly ever since.

Know More Now
We know, in consequence of this knowledge, far more about the teething age than we used to. We know that it is not dangerous, and that it causes the child little discomfort. The important thing is to see that the child's nutrition is cared for during the eruption of teeth.

A digestive upset, such as vomiting or diarrhea, and other things, such as fever and convulsions, when they happen to occur during the teething age, are ascribed to this phenomenon of the erupting of teeth.

Do not then soothe yourself with the idea that during the teething age everything that the baby may have the matter with it is due to teething entirely. The baby that has a fever during the period of the erupting of teeth may be having measles or diphtheria. So have a careful and thorough examination made of the baby who is sick during the teething age, just the same as at any other time.

The teeth begin to erupt between the fifth and seventh months; at the age of two-and-a-half the first set should have all appeared. The corresponding teeth of the two sides of the jaw erupt at the same time. The two central teeth in the lower jaw appear at the age of six or seven months; the two upper teeth at about the fifth to eighth month, and the lateral teeth from the seventh to the tenth month.

This order, however, is not invariably followed, for teeth may prematurely erupt so that they are even seen at birth. But cases of retarded eruption are much more common than those of premature eruption due to weakness, debility or disease.

During the eruption of the teeth the entire face and head change. There is a gradual elongation and prolongation of the teeth, and a consequent adjustment of the bony structures which hold them.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

R. E. P.: "Please tell me the best treatment for nasal catarrh. As I do quite a bit of singing, this condition becomes quite annoying at times and prevents me from getting the proper resonance for my voice."

Answer—Nasal catarrh is an old-fashioned term and has no real meaning. Catarrh is the desquamation of the superficial cells of a mucous membrane. In the case of the nose this would mean a secretion and a discharge. It has been found by wide and long-continued clinical observation that such conditions are due not to chronic catarrhal inflammation of the inside of the nose, but to sinus infection or turbinate infection, or to a number of factors. Excessive smoking undoubtedly aggravates nasal infections once they are established. Occupation that involves very dusty or dry or hot surroundings is another.

In discussing the treatment in his work on "Diseases of the Nose, Throat and Ear" Dr. Wallace Morrison says: "The underlying causes must be discovered and remedied if possible. This may require a complete study of the body. The local treatment, which can be carried out by the patient, consists in washing out the secretion by snuffing warm saline solution into the nose." Polyps must be removed, the deviated septum must be straightened and sinuses drained.

Shadow Over Hill House

By ELLIOTT FILLION
WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS
Guests at Hill House, a New England summer resort, are amazed when Dr. Paul Rutherford tells them that his mother has been poisoned by a small drink of whiskey he thinks was intended for him. Among them are Sally Gordon, spending her first vacation there; her close friends, Rhoda and her fiancé, Duncan; Dr. Paul's sister, Pauline; Coral Easton, Bruce Norton, Joseph Barry and Dr. Neal Peake and Josie Peake, children of Mrs. Peake, the proprietor. There has been some talk about "the spite fence," erected by Mrs. Peake's estranged sister, Miss Ivy Newcomb, near Hill House, and recent prowler heard by some of the guests. Dr. Paul and Dr. Neal try to discover who poisoned the whiskey. Meanwhile, just as she retires, Sally hears faint footsteps overhead. Sally wins Neal's admiration by making friends with his huge dog, Tinker. Later Josie is amazed to find that someone has ransacked her room. Still baffled over the prowler, the poisoned whiskey and the ransacked room, most of the guests start for the beach.

CHAPTER TEN

WHEN I TOLD Coral she was "afraid of Tinker" and "you can't fool dogs" it wasn't all a dirty crack. I expressed my sincere opinion. Rhoda gave me another dig in the ribs. I didn't know whether it was intended for applause or condemnation. Josie made again that strangled sound which I thought an added gibe at Coral. She heard it, too, for her camellia-like skin turned an ugly brick red.

Perhaps I had jeopardized my budding friendship with Neal by what I said to her, but I couldn't help it. Her ostentatious assumption of absolute authority over Neal and Tinker burned me up, though why it should do so I couldn't explain.

Now she frowned angrily around in her seat until she was facing Neal, who through the altercation was looking straight ahead. She opened her lips, but before she could speak he gave her a look which effectually sealed them again. In a stern voice which admitted no comeback, he said:

"Sally is absolutely right, Coral. Tinker is not dangerous in any way. He is a watchdog, and as such should be regarded. He has made friends with Sally, and I shall not prohibit her from handling him as she pleases."

It was a bitter pill for her to swallow, but she yielded with a pretty display of deference. Does that girl know her vegetables!

"Of course, Neal, dear" (her voice was as goosy as underdone fudge) "you know best. I was just afraid something would happen to Miss Gordon."

Neal flashed her a smile—admiration for her tender thought for another was the way I read it—and I was so mad I nearly popped.

She didn't care what happened to me, and I knew it. But she was clever enough to twist what was said to strengthen her hold upon Neal. Probably, when he calmly reviewed the conversation, he would put me down as an unmanly brat and her as the perfect lady.

There wasn't another word spoken by anyone until we reached the beach.

Neal parked the car a short distance above the beach. We sprang out and ran down to the water's edge. There were three rafts, two diving platforms, anchored at increasing distances from the shore.

The farthest one out wouldn't be too far for me, I exulted. Swimming is the one sport at which I excel. I was willing to bet that Coral Easton would be a beach lounge. Perhaps I would have a chance to talk to Neal on the raft.

Neal, arms piled high with rug, pillows and magazines, toiled from the car over the soft sand. Coral, gallantly assisted by Joseph Barry, minced along at his side.

I swam out to the first raft, hooked my arm through the safety loop and deliberately watched them. The two men chose a place and carefully spread the rug. Coral dropped the pillows exactly to her liking, tossed off her cape and gracefully stretched out there. She patted the ground beside her very invitingly. Barry jumped to a seat next her as obediently as a poodle springs through a hoop, but Neal has no beach lizard. He shook his head, ran down the beach and, ignoring her cries of: "Neal, Neal, come back here!" plunged into the water.

At his first step away from her, I dropped the loop and started slowly for the second raft. Rhoda, Josie, Orton and Duncan had already reached it and were shouting to me to hurry.

As I spoke, Neal stood upon the raft.

I wanted to laugh as I contrasted Neal's lithe plunge into the breakers with Barry's lazy sprawling on the beach. He wouldn't keep that good-looking figure of his for long if he didn't do a little strenuous exercising.

"What's the matter, Sally? Can't you make it?" It was Neal's voice in my ear. I was dawdling along waiting for him to catch up, but he didn't know that.

"It's warmer water than I'm used to," I said, tossing my sweetest smile at him. "It makes me lazy. Perhaps I need a race to wake me up."

Neal fell for that, just as I expected he would. "Beat you to the raft," he cried gallily.

"Like fun you will," I flung back at him. I spurred with every ounce of strength I possessed, but I couldn't draw away from him as I can from two-thirds of my swimming acquaintances. I could keep even, stroke for stroke, and that was all.

"You can sure swim, Sally," he said as we reached the raft. "There aren't many girls who can keep up with me."

That made me feel better. I had been afraid that my best speed was for Neal a slow one, and that if he had wanted to do so he could have pulled away and left me far behind.

We had a gay hour on the raft. Orton, who at first stuck close to Josie, decided he had had enough. He swam to shore and Josie went with him. Then we four sat down on the raft edge and seriously considered the mystery of Hill House.

We talked and talked, and the more we said the more puzzled we became.

"Why don't you call in the police, Neal?" asked Duncan. "If the three things, the prowling, poisoning and ransacking of Josie's room are the work of one person, they certainly must have a definite object in view. In that case you can't foresee what they will do next. I think you should have someone here who can find out what is going on and give you protection if you need it."

Neal shrugged his shoulders unavailingly. "I suggested that to Paul," he confessed, "but he doesn't want his mother upset by knowing what really ailed her. She isn't a very strong woman and he is afraid of the effect on her."

"Then," spoke up Rhoda, "turn Tinker loose at night as you first spoke of doing."

"What good would that do?" countered Duncan. "You'd have to wait until all the boarders are in their rooms; and even then, unless you told them all, someone might go out—to see the moonlight or for some other equally innocent reason—and get into trouble. And if you did tell them, the most of them would pack up and leave at once. I tell you, Neal, the only sensible thing is to call in the police."

"Then leave the poisoning of Mrs. Rutherford out of it," urged Duncan. "Tell them about the prowler and Josie's room. They'll set a trap and catch the one responsible before any more harm is done."

"I think Josie should have the deciding vote," I remarked firmly. "After all, it is her room which was searched."

As I spoke Neal stood up on the raft, glanced down at me, then looked around. I followed suit. I supposed he intended to call Josie. She was on the beach conversing with a fine-looking young fellow.

Neal emitted an unintelligible grunt and dived off the raft. "Josie," he yelled as he came to the surface and started at top speed for the shore.

Josie looked around at Neal's shout, waved and walked up the beach. The stranger went with her. "Let us go, too," Rhoda suggested.

By the time we reached the shore, Josie and the young fellow were some distance up the beach with Neal striding purposefully in pursuit.

"Josie, come back here," I heard him yell as I shook the water from my ears.

Leisurely Josie turned back to meet Neal and the stranger went on alone.

"There'll be fireworks now," mourned Rhoda in an aside to me. I think that she had just noticed Josie's companion. When Duncan Abbott is about, Rhoda's world is almost always limited to one person, and he is that one.

"That's Alan Murray," she added, as I looked inquiringly at her. It didn't mean a thing to me. I didn't know who Alan Murray might be, but it was easily seen that Neal and Josie were in a furious quarrel. When they reached us, Neal stalked by without a word, heading for Coral's rug. As he went, Josie flung angrily after him:

"You should talk! Anyway, I don't care what you say. I like him. It isn't his fault if his mother is Miss Ivy's best friend."

INLAND AMERICAN VOYAGE

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON, on his "Inland Voyage" through France, and J. K. Jerome's "Three Men in a Boat" in England were pikers, not to be classed with Mrs. E. B. Clegg of British Columbia. Mrs. Clegg, who is a grandmother, is traveling by water across the United States. She started from Portland, Ore., and expects to reach New York City before winter.

She chose an outboard motor boat for her voyage, and has a navigator to handle it. She camps at night and takes movies by day, and is having a leisurely look at a great part of this country. From Louisville, Ky., where she landed in September, Mrs. Clegg is proceeding toward the Metropolis via the Ohio River, the Allegheny, the New York State Barge Canal, and the Hudson River.

Such a trip stirs the imagination. A general interest in our American waterways should not be hard to cultivate. Flood prevention and soil conservation have already turned attention that way. There is a growing movement to end river pollution and to restore to the long-abused streams their natural beauty and cleanliness. Books about the Kennebec and Upper Mississippi, the Suwannee and Powder rivers have appeared in the American River Series, and other volumes are to follow.

It would be fine if Mrs. Clegg's voyage hastened these developments and introduced more of us to our many and lovely national streams.

Pages from the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up to a morning of heavy frost, first of the year and vanguard of the winter that is not so far away as some of us might wish it. I like summer and fall. Opinion on the seasons, however, seems as widely split as on politics.

Belowstairs did turn to coffee and the morning prints, first reading the for and against arguments in the congress on proposed alteration of the neutrality act. Everyone should read all of those arguments, for the decision of our congressmen on the bill probably will spell peace or war. My stand is opposed to a change although I have tried honestly to see both sides of the question. So far, the only argument I have heard in favor of a change is that the present law works a hardship on England and France. That and the fact that the present law is not strong enough. Well, why not put teeth in the present law and continue prohibiting shipment of the instruments of death in American ships. Also put into full force the cash and carry system. I'm in favor of cash, remembering that all we got out of the last World War was the dubious honor of financing it.

Much talk around the village about chances of the Reds in the World Series and Ohio State on the gridiron. Saw a timely and interesting window decoration at Ted Schmidt's Circleville Paint Store. Two football teams in active combat and the players only dressed-up peanuts. Ted did the work and a fine job it is.

HOOVER MAY HEAD NEW AGENCY

WASHINGTON—Don't be surprised if Herbert Hoover comes back into the international food relief picture with the expressed blessing of his political enemy, Franklin Roosevelt.

Conversations to this effect have been taking place behind the scenes during the past week. They originated when friends of the ex-President began flooding the White House, Red Cross, and Jewish refugee committees with suggestions urging that Hoover head a new international relief set-up.

Those close to the White House had no idea that Roosevelt would respond, since there has been no love lost between the President and the ex-President. Advisers were amazed, however, when Roosevelt took the idea under serious consideration.

He suggested, in turn, that Mr. Hoover outline a definite plan. A great many ideas for war relief have flooded Washington with nothing concrete about them except that Mr. Hoover should take over the reins. None of them has been very practical, partly because only one country, Poland, is suffering and it is impossible geographically to reach it.

Those around the White House could not be sure whether the President was passing the buck back to Hoover, or whether he welcomed the idea of securing his services. Anyway that was what he did.

NOTE—It will be recalled that when the United States entered the World War, ex-President Theodore Roosevelt offered his services to the United States to head an immediate military expedition to France. Woodrow Wilson, whose relations with T. R. were comparable to those between F. D. R. and Hoover, was much embarrassed and vetoed Teddy's offer.

HOOVER VS. MOLEY

It is not supposed to be known, but when Professor Moleys articles, highly critical of Roosevelt, first appeared in The Saturday Evening Post, Herbert Hoover sent word that he hoped the President would answer them.

Hoover asserted that in the part of the articles pertaining to him, Hoover, Moley had made 22 grievous errors, and that he would like to make a public statement to that effect.

Roosevelt sent word back that he didn't think it was a good idea to dignify the articles with a reply. He said that Moley was fond of quoting Elizabethan poets, but that there was one quotation which Moley did not use. This was:

"Kings may love treason, but the traitor hate."

Belittling Dangers of the Teething Age

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

MOTHERS have instilled in their minds the idea that there is a so-called teething age for babies. This goes with a belief that the erupting of teeth is the cause of many baby ailments.

Fifty years or more ago the doctors turned over the care of the baby from the time it was born to the grandmother or some female in the neighborhood who had a reputation for being good with babies.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

These excellent ladies were efficacious, not very scientific, and the teething age idea was one of their most cherished beliefs.

The interest in children from the medical standpoint is of quite recent development. The first book on diseases of children which had any scientific standing was published during the present century. Interest in children and all their problems has grown rapidly ever since.

Know More Now We know, in consequence of this knowledge, far more about the teething age than we used to. We know that it is not dangerous, and that it causes the child little discomfort. The important thing is to see that the child's nutrition is cared for during the erupting of teeth.

A digestive upset, such as vomiting or diarrhea, and other things, such as fever and convulsions, when they happen to occur during the teething age, are ascribed to this phenomenon of the erupting of teeth.

Do not then soothe yourself with the idea that during the teething age everything that the baby may have the matter with it is due to teething entirely. The baby that has a fever during the period of the erupting of teeth may be having measles or diphtheria. So have a careful and thorough examination made of the baby who is sick during the teething age, just the same as at any other time.

The teeth begin to erupt between the fifth and seventh months; at the age of two-and-a-half the first set should have all appeared. The corresponding teeth of the two sides of the jaw erupt at the same time. The two center teeth in the lower jaw appear at the age of six or seven months; the two upper teeth at about the fifth to eighth month, and the lateral teeth from the seventh to the tenth month.

This order, however, is not invariably followed, for teeth may prematurely erupt so that they are even seen at birth. But cases of retarded eruption are much more common than those of premature eruption due to weakness, debility or

During the eruption of the teeth the entire face and head change. There is a gradual elongation and prolongation of the teeth, and a consequent adjustment of the bony structures which hold them.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

R. E. P.: "Please tell me the best treatment for nasal catarrh. As I do quite a bit of singing, this condition becomes quite annoying at times and prevents me from getting the proper resonance for my voice."

Answer—Nasal catarrh is an old-fashioned term and has no real meaning. Catarrh is the desquamation of the superficial cells of a mucous membrane. In the case of the nose this would mean a secretion and a discharge. It has been found by wide and long-continued clinical observation that such conditions are due not to chronic catarrhal inflammation of the inside of the nose, but to sinus infection or turbinate infection, or to a number of factors. Excessive smoking undoubtedly aggravates nasal infection once they are established. Occupation that involves very dusty or dry or hot surroundings is another.

In discussing the treatment in his work on "Diseases of the Nose, Throat and Ear" Dr. Wallace Morrison says: "The underlying causes must be discovered and remedied if possible. This may require a complete study of the body. The local treatment, which can be carried out by the patient, consists in washing out the secretion by sniffing warm saline solution into the nose." Polyps must be removed, the deviated septum must be straightened and sinuses drained.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendenning has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendenning, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Ways to Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

ing to me to hurry. I wanted to laugh as I contrasted Neal's lithe plunge into the breakers with Barry's lazy sprawling on the beach. He wouldn't keep that good-looking figure of his for long if he didn't do a little strenuous exercising.

"What's the matter, Sally? Can't you make it?" It was Neal's voice in my ear. I was dawdling along waiting for him to catch up, but he didn't know that.

"It's warmer water than I'm used to," I said, tossing my sweetest smile at him. "It makes me lazy. Perhaps I need a race to wake me up."

Neal fell for that, just as I expected he would. "Beat you to the raft," he cried gaily.

"Like fun you will," I flung back at him. I spurred with every ounce of strength I possessed, but I couldn't draw away from him as I came from two-thirds of my swimming acquaintances. I could keep even, stroke for stroke, and that was all.

"You can sure swim, Sally," he said as we reached the raft. "There aren't many girls who can keep up with me."

That made me feel better. I had been afraid that my best speed was for Neal a slow one, and that if he had wanted to do so he could have pulled away and left me far behind.

We had a gay hour on the raft. Orton, who at first stuck close to Jossie, decided he had had enough. He swam to shore and Jossie went with him. Then we four sat down on the raft edge and seriously considered the mystery of Hill House.

We talked and talked, and the more we said the more puzzled we became.

"Why don't you call in the police, Neal?" asked Duncan. "If the three things, the prowling, poisoning and ransacking of Jossie's room are the work of one person, they certainly must have a definite object in view. In that case you can't foresee what they will do next. I think you should have someone here who can find out what is going on and give you protection if you need it."

Neal shrugged his shoulders uneasily. "I suggested that to Paul," he confessed, "but he doesn't want his mother upset by knowing what really ailed her. She isn't a very strong woman and he is afraid of the effect on her."

"Then," spoke up Rhoda, "turn Tinker loose at night as you first spoke of doing."

"What good would that do?" countered Duncan. "You'd have to wait until all the boarders are in the pathway of the strong—Carlyle.

Hints on Etiquette

If you meet the same person day after day, in the shop, on the street corner, in your office building, or on bus or car, do not hesitate to pass a friendly word of greeting. Such little gestures make for pleasant human relations.

Today's Horoscope

A happy, but uneventful year will be experienced by those who today are celebrating their birthdays. The twelve months will include no troubles or disasters of any kind. The child born today will be fortunate and generally successful. He or she will be humane, well-disposed, genial, refined, clever, with artistic, musical or literary talents. An urbane and debonaire personality is also indicated.

You're Telling Me!

MUSSOLINI is certainly having his difficulties these days. He wants to pose waving an olive branch, yet he hates to give up their rooms; and even then, unless you told them all, someone might go out—to see the moonlight or for some other equally innocent reason—and get into trouble. And if you did tell them, the most of them would pack up and leave at once. I tell you, Neal, the only sensible thing is to call in the police."

"Then leave the poisoning of Mrs. Rutherford out of it," urged Duncan. "Tell them about the prowler and Jossie's room. They'll set a trap and catch the one responsible before any more harm is done."

"I think Jossie should have the deciding vote," I remarked firmly. "After all, it is her room which was searched."

As I spoke Neal stood up on the raft, glanced down at me, then looked around. I followed suit. I supposed he intended to call Jossie. She was on the beach conversing with a fine-looking young fellow.

Neal emitted an unintelligible grunt and dived off the raft. "Jossie," he yelled as he came to the surface and started at top speed for the shore.

Jossie looked around at Neal's shout, waved and walked up the beach. The stranger went with her. "Let us go, too," Rhoda suggested.

By the time we reached the shore, Jossie and the young fellow were some distance up the beach with Neal striding purposefully in pursuit.

"Jossie, come back here," I heard him yell as I shook the water from my ears.

Leisurely Jossie turned back to meet Neal and the stranger went on alone.

"There'll be fireworks now," murmured Rhoda in an aside to me. I think that she had just noticed Jossie's companion. When Duncan Albee is about, Rhoda's world is almost always limited to one person, and he is that one.

"That's Alan Murray," she added, as I looked inquiringly at her. It didn't mean a thing to me. I didn't know who Alan Murray might be, but it was easily seen that Neal and Jossie were in a furious quarrel. When they reached us, Neal stalked by without a word, heading for Coral's rug. As he went, Jossie flung angrily after him:

"You should talk! Anyway, I don't care what you say. I like him. It isn't his fault if his mother is Miss Ivy's best friend."

GARDEN-GRAPH

As soon as the foliage of gladiolus have turned brown and died down, the corms should be lifted. It is advisable to take them up before they have become entirely dry so that the bulbets are still rather firmly attached to the old corm.

As shown in the above Garden-Graph, cut off the tops close to the bulb. Then remove the withered lower corm and discard it. Save the large corm or bulb. Separate the new little corms or bulbets and keep them over winter in either sand or soil in a cool, dry place just as you do the large bulbs.

When removing the little corms label them carefully, if they are of named varieties.

Von Bora Society Hears Interesting Travel Talk

Miss Rooney Tells Of Journey To Britain

More than 50 members and guests heard Miss Margaret Rooney discuss her summer trip to England, Scotland and Ireland at the Monday meeting of Von Bora Society in Trinity Lutheran parish house. In particular Miss Rooney discussed the women of England and their attitude in regard to American women. Her delightful satire in telling of their feeling of superiority caused much merriment in her audience.

During the business hour, Mrs. Fred Brown was chosen delegate to the district meeting of the Women's Missionary group which will be October 25-26 at Fremont, with Mrs. James Carpenter named to serve as alternate.

Mrs. Brown, president of the society, announced that the annual Thankoffering program will be held at the next session of the group. A covered dish supper will precede the regular session. It is requested that each member take a toy to this session to be sent at Christmas time to the Caney Creek Community Center of Kentucky.

In addition to Miss Rooney's talk, two violin solos were played by Miss Vera Zaenglein during the program hour. Miss Ruth Esler Blum played the piano accompaniments. Mrs. Edward Schreiner and Mrs. Carl Leist were responsible for the pleasant evening.

French marigolds in shallow baskets centered the attractive tables where refreshments were served by Mrs. J. H. Stout and other members of the October committee.

Mrs. J. Wallace Crist and Mrs. Ralph Ward will arrange the program for the November session with refreshments to be in charge of Mrs. John Walters, chairman, Mrs. Luther Bower, Mrs. Dudley Carpenter, Miss Nellie Eschbaugh, Mrs. H. M. Crites and Miss Ethel Cook.

Mrs. Ross Hamilton, Mrs. Roscoe Warren and Mrs. Harold Clifton won the prizes in the games played during the affair.

Seasonable refreshments were served at the small tables.

Mrs. Walter Osborne of Washington, D. C., a former class member was a guest for the social session.

GARDEN-GRAPH

As soon as the foliage of gladiolus have turned brown and died down, the corms should be lifted. It is advisable to take them up before they have become entirely dry so that the bulbets are still rather firmly attached to the old corm.

As shown in the above Garden-Graph, cut off the tops close to the bulb. Then remove the withered lower corm and discard it. Save the large corm or bulb. Separate the new little cormels or bulbets and keep them over winter in either sand or soil in a cool, dry place just as you do the large bulbs.

When removing the little cormels label them carefully, if they are of named varieties.

PRIME MINISTER SAYS VIOLENCE MUST BE ENDED

"No More Assurances From Germany Acceptable," Commons Hears

icated nation which has taken a stand against a defied nation of Nazis."

At the same time the archbishop, second highest prelate of the church of England, a member of the House of Lords and a power in British councils, stressed the willingness of the British government to make peace with an "honorable German government" from which Chancellor Hitler and his aides would be excluded.

He also warned that when the final peace terms are made, Britain must be prepared for sacrifices.

BERLIN, Oct. 3 — A veiled but nonetheless ominous warning that refusal by the allies to accept Germany's peace offer based on the partition of Poland may lead to military cooperation among Germany, Italy and Soviet Russia was given out in authoritative Nazi quarters today.

The warning, made shortly before Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's address before the House of Commons, undoubtedly was intended to have its effect on the British statesman's remarks, since in the German view it is now up to London to decide whether the world faces war to the hilt or "peace in our time."

The possibility that Russia and Italy might leap into the conflict on the side of Germany was voiced by Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering's newspaper, the Essener National Zeitung, which said:

"The fact that two great powers (Germany and Italy) or even three great powers (Germany, Italy and Russia) desire peace and are ready if necessary to defend it with their armed forces must not be interpreted by the adversary, who is in great political difficulties, as a peace offer from war-weary states. . . it is a last hour appeal to the peoples of the world to use reason."

Goebbels Paper Quoted

To this comment on the 19-hour visit of Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano to Berlin, which ended abruptly at noon yesterday when he boarded a train for Rome, Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels newspaper, Der Angriff, added:

"Premier Mussolini is now prepared to reach decisions in accordance with the spirit of Fascism and Italy's position as a revisionist power. . . if the Western powers want it that way."

Nevertheless, while Chancellor Hitler worked on the declaration to the Reichstag he will make later this week and which may serve as a reply to the speech of Chamberlain in London today — neutral sources in Berlin speculated on the exact status of Rome-Berlin relations.

This speculation arose from the fact that Ciano hurried home earlier than was expected, that the communiqué announcing his departure made no mention of complete agreement between Berlin and Rome and that he was seen off at the station by Col.-Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the supreme command of the German armed forces.

NAZIS MASSING MIGHTY FORCES IN SWISS AREA

SPARKS BLAMED FOR FIRE AT HILLSBORO LANDMARK

HILLSBORO, Oct. 3—Sparks from a chimney were blamed today for a $15,000 fire that destroyed Woodlawn, historic colonial home built 100 years ago by William H. Trimble, son of one of Ohio's early governors, Allen Trimble.

Many valuable paintings and antiques were consumed by the flames, which also wrecked huge marble fireplaces and costly chandeliers.

GERMANS WARN AMERICAN SHIPS TO BE CAREFUL

Merchant Vessels Should Obey Commands From Nazi Patrols

while others said it was a fast armed merchantman, disguised as a harmless freighter.

LONDON, Oct. 3—The London Daily Mail reported today that the German radio at Hamburg broadcast a threat against the Mauretania, Great Britain's newest luxury liner which sailed from New York on Saturday.

Three Guns Mounted

According to the Mail, the German broadcast pointed out the Mauretania mounted three guns, adding:

"The British admiralty no doubt will accept responsibility for this action."

The Mail recalled that the Germans similarly threatened the Laconia in 1917, torpedoing it shortly thereafter.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Oct. 3—The commander-in-chief of the Swedish navy warned all Swedish ships today to follow the coast within territorial waters prior to assembling for convoy by Swedish warships.

The warning was issued following a burst of action in the Western Baltic in which at least 11 neutral ships, including eight Swedish merchant vessels were seized and forcibly escorted to Reich ports by German warships and military planes.

Hitler's Yacht Attacked

In addition, a British submarine was reported sunk by a German U-boat and a machine gun attack was reported to have been carried out by two Swedish army planes against Chancellor Hitler's favorite naval yacht, the Grille.

South of the Swedish port of Skaneateles, the Grille was alleged to have sailed into Swedish territorial waters in an attempt to chase a Swedish merchantman into the high seas, where it could be seized.

Two Swedish planes flew over the scene, raking the Grille with machine gun fire that forced it to retreat out to sea.

The Polish navy's patrol ship Batory escaped a cordon of German war vessels and mines off the Hel peninsula and arrived at Gotland, Sweden, after racing under forced draft at 24 knots.

Two other Polish vessels tried to break through the German cordon, but their fate was not known.

THREE FAIRFIELD MEN JAILED FOR VOICING THREATS

LANCASTER, Oct. 3 — Three men are held in the Fairfield County jail for hearings on charges of allegedly employing menacing threats to extort money from Mrs. Louisa Brown of Lancaster.

The men are Stanley Pickering, 24; Albert J. Ackers, 25, and Ivor Phillips, 33, all of Lancaster.

It is alleged they posed as state liquor agents and went to the Brown home recently and allegedly threatened to expose her if she did not pay them money. Mrs. Brown told officers the three men obtained about $100.

ILLINOIS PRISON FUGITIVE FIGHTS RETURN TO JAIL

DETROIT, Oct. 3 — A modern Jean Valjean, faced with return to the Illinois state reformatory in Pontiac, from which he escaped in 1921, John Deuben, 39, today was heartened by the complete support of the soft drink distributing company for which he has worked for three years.

His employers are fighting against his extradition to Illinois where he still has nine years and two months to serve for robbery armed. They described him as a "model employee," provided $1,000 bail to gain his temporary freedom, and announced they will give him the best legal talent available to help him remain free.

Deuben was arrested in a downtown hotel last Friday after police received an anonymous typewritten note which read:

"John Deuben who escaped from the Illinois reformatory at Pontiac in 1921 may be found at the Griswold Hotel."

Police found him with his 22-year-old bride of three weeks.

His first wife, married after his escape, died in Texas in 1932.

Their two children are living with their parents in Texas.

they can subsequently be taken by the "nut-cracker" tactics which the French have used against the outlying sections of the German Siegfried line.

In seeking out French communications and troop concentrations behind the front, the German heavy guns shelled many of their own villages which the French already have captured.

Authorities said this showed the Germans believe the French reinforcements are concentrated in these villages. This, however, was denied in military circles.

The German counter-attacks, it was added, were hurled back with heavy casualties.

By Kenneth T. Downs

This correspondent learned from a responsible authority today the peace plan whereby Nazi Germany hopes to end the war on its own terms.

"Seductive" was the term used by my informant in describing the plan. For under any other circumstances, and coming from any government whose pledged word enjoyed international trust, it would be difficult to reject.

Buffer State Provided

Briefly, here are the proposals that, at the present moment at least, Hitler plans to make in his speech before the Reichstag late this week:

1—Creation of a Polish buffer state, with Warsaw as the capital, to be carved out of the present German portion of the partitioned country and mutually guaranteed by Germany and Soviet Russia.

2 — Worldwide disarmament, with establishment of some form of international control to ensure that each nation abides by the provisions to be laid down.

3—Redistribution of raw materials on the lines of League of Nations proposals made years ago.

4—Guarantee of the status quo of all existing European frontiers by means of a collective security pact embracing every willing signatory.

5—Examination of the colonial problem with a view to eventual redistribution.

Proposals Favorable

As the authority who described the plan put it:

"If these proposals were advanced under any other conditions than over the body of a mutilated ally, or by a statesman whose word was even partly credible, it would be difficult to reject them."

"But it seems certain that Great Britain and France will spurn them with scorn, in view of Hitler's consistent record for mendacity."

SENATE DEBATE POSTPONED DAY BY LOGAN DEATH

passage of the bill 65 votes will be found for the New Deal bill. Strategy leaders on both sides were moving cautiously at the outset of the neutrality fight, but opposition strategists formulated a tentative plan they believe will gain them votes. Senator Clark (D) Missouri, one of the opposition chiefs, said his forces would seek to clamp the present law's arms embargo to the drastic regulatory structure of the administration bill.

"If that bill provides for so many safeties to American neutrality and peace," he said, "why won't it be stronger if we take it, and add the arms embargo too? An amendment will be introduced before a vote is taken on this bill providing for retention of the arms embargo—and its insertion as a portion of this bill. Then we will have the cash-and-carry provisions of the measure as now drafted and the arms embargo along with it."

"In my opinion, such a move will command a powerful support in the senate."

In the administration camp quiet discussions of the vote-losing dangers of the provision giving 90 day credit to purchasers of American goods under the legislation were under way. While leaders would not abandon this provision in favor of a strict "cash" section, they "cushioned" against any moves in this direction they may make later by saying "its not important, after all."

Many valuable paintings and antiques were consumed by the flames, which also wrecked huge marble fireplaces and costly chandeliers.

TWO AMERICAN LOOP PITCHING STARS FAULTY?

Gotham Hears That Ruffing May Be Held Over For Second Contest

DERRINGER READY TO GO

Ohioans As Calm As Though They Were Playing Philadelphians

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 — Admittedly at their peak in recent games for the first time since July, the confident, hustling Cincinnati Reds hereby are given the best chance of any team in the last four years to stall the New York Yankees and win the World Series, for, seemingly, the Yanks are going to start with uncertain pitching. Lefty Gomez apparently is definitely out of it and disquieting reports today had it that Red Ruffing may be held over until the second game. In that case, Monte Pearson, Oral Hildebrand or some innocent bystander would get the call to oppose Paul Derringer in the opener tomorrow.

The baseball people are not above planting propaganda that will best serve their ends, but nobody around here is doubting that Gomez is out of it and Ruffing a potential early casualty. Gomez unreasonably picked the week before the series to get himself laid up with a pulled side muscle, while Ruffing has had the miseries in his right arm ever since mid-September.

Speculation Prevails

Manager Joe McCarthy has promised to make his opening game nomination this afternoon, following a brief workout for Ruffing, the assumption being that he will be named unless he quite obviously is beyond hope. However, the mere fact that there should be so much speculation on the proposition is indicative of a possible upset, to bring to an end the Yankee reign through three straight series. By this time prior to those other series, McCarthy long since had nominated either Gomez or Ruffing. And, it might be added, he whichever one it happened to be—usually came through. But it's a little different around here now. In the last 36 hours some uncertainty has crept in, and there is speculation on how to 3 on the Yanks are going to remain unchanged.

In contrast to all the confusion we are experiencing in what we laughingly call our camp, the Reds, can be seen sitting around the lobby of their hotel as composed as though they were going into a June game with the Philadelphia Phillies. They've got Derringer for the opener and Bucky Walters and Gene Thompson for the second and third games. That's good enough for them. Their pitchers are at least reasonably healthy.

Both To Workout

The program for today called for a workout by both clubs, the Yankees to take the field first, leaving it to the Reds at the time of the games so that they will get a chance to study the shadows, if any, and other peculiarities.

Garcia Puts Sleeper on Freddie Apostoli

By Hype Igoo

NEW YORK, Oct. 3—Fred Apostoli, "bolloed" off his middleweight throne by the Filipino, Cerferino Garcia, today renounced the 160-pound division and declared that he never again would attempt to fight at that weight.

Utterly crushed by the seventh-round knockout at the hands of the blazing-eyed son of a Manila sugar cane cutter, the former bell-hop said that in the future he must cast his luck with the light heavyweights. Larry White, his manager, backed up the statement.

When Apostoli had to drill 20 minutes to take off a hateful half-pound in order to make the title mark of 160 pounds, it was plain then that Apostoli was making his last stand as a middleweight.

Garcia brought Apostoli down three times in the seventh and last round in Madison Square Garden and Fred took counts of "2," "9" and after "2" had been tolled in his third crash to the canvas, Billy Cavanaugh mercifully stopped the bout.

Garcia Not Hurt

The end really began to loom up in the sixth. Apostoli was landing but apparently he didn't hurt Garcia who was astonishingly strong at 153½ pounds. When Garcia landed he hurt Apostoli. Almost before he could take his fighting stance in the seventh, Apostoli was adrift in mid-ocean in a butter tub. The Philippine boy, his raven hair sticking out like the quills on a porcupine, seemed like a demon possessed. He ripped uppercuts with deadly effectiveness to Apostoli's chin and body. He was like a windmill torn loose from its mooring. Rights and lefts, rights and lefts, lefts and rights fairly showered on Apostoli's chin, head and body.

In the dressing room Apostoli sat, dazed, mute, staring at the walls. Larry White, his manager, pointed to a three-inch cut under Apostoli's chin and said:

"Garcia came up with his head, accidentally in the fifth, causing that wound and that dazed Fred so that he never recovered from the blow."

Garcia was happiness unbridled. He said:

"Now I go home to see my people in the Philippines. I left there in 1932 and said I never would come back until I was champion."

The bout drew $35,433.83, the paid attendance being 11,465.

GREENFIELD '11' INVADERS TIGER LOT FRIDAY EVE

McClain To Help Fry Off League Lid; Red And Black Ready

Greenfield McClain, arch-rival of Circleville High School's Tigers, comes to Circleville Friday evening to help open the Red and Black's participation in the South Central Ohio League. The McClain team, led by big Carl Grate, defeated the Tigers 73 to 0 last year.

Grate is gone and so are many of his colleagues, so the Tigers are drilling for the contest with high hopes.

The Red and Black squad is in pretty good condition. Harold Smith's ouchy right ankle seems well mended; Bob Bowsher is slowed down a little by a right leg bruise, but all other members of the squad are awaiting Greenfield's invasion with high hopes.

The contest is being booked as the booster game, all net proceeds of the game going to the improvement association that made the lighting system possible.

Virgil Cress, faculty manager of athletics, said Tuesday that Harley Pearce, Rodney Ross and Doc Donaldson will officiate. All three are well known locally and all are known to be capable and efficient. Ross is expected to referee, Pearce to umpire and Donaldson to handle the line tape.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES, O. S. U. floriculturist

QUESTION: How and when would you root-prune a wisteria vine? Mine blooms occasionally but I understand if I root-prune it, it will bloom much better.

ANSWER: Unfortunately most of the wisteria vines have been grown from seed and as such may be good bloomers, but more often are not. Occasionally severe root pruning will cause them to bloom but this cannot be relied upon. My advice is that you buy a grafted wisteria which will bloom every year. Another method that some people use is to cut the wisteria down six inches from the ground and graft it with some scions from a vine known to bloom regularly. This is done in the spring, the same way you would top-work an apple tree.

QUESTION: What can you tell me about the cucumber tree?

ANSWER: The cucumber tree is native throughout Ohio and, although not common, it is found in almost every county. It makes an excellent shade tree, being very much the same size as a sugar maple. Being a magnolia, it should be planted in the spring rather than in the fall.

QUESTION: Is it true that flowering dogwood should always be planted with its roots pointed to the south?

ANSWER: I have heard lots of odd suggestions made regarding the proper way to plant trees and shrubs but this is a new one to me. There is absolutely no reason why you should not plant it any way you wish. Flowering dogwoods are best planted in the spring. Even then care should be taken to wrap the trunk in burlap or paper from the branches to the ground to keep out borers.

QUESTION: The leaves of the cedar trees in my front yard are dying. Can you tell me what is wrong with them?

ANSWER: It is impossible to diagnose the trouble you are having with your evergreens without knowing what kind they are without seeing specimens of them. If

BUCKEYES' MAAG ON SIDELINE AS SEASON STARTS

COLUMBUS, Oct. 3—Ohio State University's hopes of smashing to a defensive victory over Missouri Saturday were dealt a slight setback today when the announcement that Charley Maag, huge right tackle, would be out of action because of a bruised left ankle.

Coach Francis Schmidt said Maag was definitely out for the rest of the week. Maag was hurt in a scrimmage last Friday. Sophomores Jim Piccinini and Jack Stephenson will alternate at Maag's position in the inaugural pigskin encounter.

During an informal press conference yesterday, Schmidt departed from customary tradition and stated flatly that his Buckeyes looked "pretty good." At the same time, however, Schmidt made it clear that he held Missouri in high esteem. He saw the Missouri wallop Colorado 50 to 0 last Saturday.

Fearful most by the Buck mentor were Missouri's Paul Christman, husky running halfback, and Fullback Bill Cunningham. Those two men bore the brunt of the attack against Colorado and will probably be the men the Bucks must throttle.

BUDDY WALKER WINS

ties they will encounter in the local setting. The game starts Wednesday at 1:30.

Aside from their pitchers, the Yankees were pronounced by Trainer Earl Painter as nearly perfect shape as he has ever seen them. That would be reassuring, but for the fact that pitching could decide the series—and probably will.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3—Fred Apostoli, "boloed" off his middleweight throne by the Filipino, Cerferino Garcia, today renounced the 160-pound division and declared that he never again would attempt to fight at that weight.

HARTNETT GIVES REDLEGS CHANCE TO GAIN HONORS

CHICAGO, Oct. 3 — Manager Gabby Hartnett of the 1938 National League champions, the Chicago Cubs, is not among those who feel the coming world series is in the bag for the Yankees.

Hartnett, whose own club was batted out of last year's series in four straight games by the New Yorkers, said today:
"Why shouldn't the Reds have a chance? We lost every game to the Yankees last fall, but in every one of them we had as good a chance to win as they did, and let it slip away. I know the Reds of this year are a lot stronger than the club we had against the Yankees. And outside of the strength Charley Keller may have added to the Yankees, I can't imagine they are any better now than they were last fall. Maybe they're not as good if it's true that 'lefty Gomez' arm is bothering him."

RED WINGS HIT COLONELS FOR 13 TO 3 MARGIN

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 3 — The Rochester Red Wings of the International League and the Louisville Colonels, American Association champions, were locked at two games all today in their "little world series." Rochester tied the series last night by teeing off against five Louisville pitchers for 20 hits, winning 13 to 3.

The fifth game in the series will be played here tonight, with the teams then moving to Rochester for the sixth and perhaps deciding contest in the best-four-out-of-seven games.

JOHNNY BLOOD RESIGNS HIS PITTSBURGH PRO JOB

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 3 — Johnny Blood resigned today as coach of the Pittsburgh Pirates pro football team in the wake of the Buc's third defeat in as many starts this season. Blood handed his resignation to President Art Rooney a few hours after the Pirates were walloped 52-0 by the Chicago Bears at Forbes Field last night. The game also marked the Pirates' ninth straight loss.

CUPID FIGHT DATE VICTOR

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 — The State Athletic Commission lost a round to Kid Cupid and as a result the scheduled world welterweight championship battle between Lou Ambers and Henry Armstrong on November 1 was off the books today until December 1 to permit Ambers to go on a honeymoon. He promised to return as speedily as possible and begin training.

GREENFIELD '11' INVADERS TIGER LOT FRIDAY EVE

McClain To Help Pry Off League Lid; Red And Black Ready

Greenfield McClain, arch-rival of Circleville High School's Tigers, comes to Circleville Friday evening to help open the Red and Black's participation in the South Central Ohio League. The McClain team, led by big Carl Grate, defeated the Tigers 73 to 0 last year.

Grate is gone and so are many of his colleagues, so the Tigers are drilling for the contest with high hopes.

The Red and Black squad is in pretty good condition. Harold Smith's ouchy right ankle seems well mended; Bob Bowsher is slowed down a little by a right leg bruise, but all other members of the squad are awaiting Greenfield's invasion with high hopes.

The contest is being booked as the booster game, all net proceeds of the game going to the improvement association that made the lighting system possible.

Virgil Cress, faculty manager of athletics, said Tuesday that Harley Pearce, Rodney Ross and Doc Donaldson will officiate. All three are well known locally and all are known to be capable and efficient. Ross is expected to referee, Pearce to umpire and Donaldson to handle the line tape.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES,
O. S. U. floriculturist

QUESTION: How and when would you root-prune a wisteria vine? Mine blooms occasionally but I understand if I root-prune it, it will bloom much better.

ANSWER: Unfortunately most of the wisteria vines have been grown from seed and as such may be good bloomers, but more often are not. Occasionally severe root pruning will cause them to bloom but this cannot be relied upon. My advice is that you buy a grafted wisteria which will bloom every year. Another method that some people use is to cut the wisteria down six inches from the ground and graft it with some scions from a vine known to bloom regularly. This is done in the spring, the same way you would top-work an apple tree.

QUESTION: What can you tell me about the cucumber tree?

ANSWER: The cucumber tree is native throughout Ohio and, although not common, it is found in almost every county. It makes an excellent shade tree, being very much the same size as a sugar maple. Being a magnolia, it should be planted in the spring rather than in the fall.

QUESTION: Is it true that flowering dogwood should always be planted with its roots pointed to the south?

ANSWER: I have heard lots of odd suggestions made regarding the proper way to plant trees and shrubs but this is a new one to me. There is absolutely no reason why you should not plant it any way you wish. Flowering dogwoods are best planted in the spring. Even then care should be taken to wrap the trunk in burlap or paper from the branches to the ground to keep out borers.

QUESTION: The leaves of the cedar trees in my front yard are dying. Can you tell me what is wrong with them?

ANSWER: It is impossible to diagnose the trouble you are having with your evergreens without knowing what kind they are without seeing specimens of them. If you care to send me in some twigs, we will be glad to diagnose your difficulty for you.

QUESTION: The leaves of my flowering dogwoods are curling and drying up at the tips and edges. Can you tell me what I can spray it with to prevent this?

ANSWER: Your flowering dogwoods are merely showing the lack of sufficient moisture in the soil. I would recommend that you water them thoroughly so that the soil is moistened to a depth of six or eight inches. Although this won't bring the leaves back to normal condition, it will prevent the drying and dying of the branches.

QUESTION: I have a very nice pink flowering magnolia in my yard and I would like to get another one. Can you tell me how I can propagate it?

ANSWER: The magnolia that you purchase from nurserymen has been grafted onto seedling magnolias. Since this method is not practical for you, the only way that it might work is to bend one

KIWANIS CLUB GOES ON RECORD AS OPPOSING TWO BIGELOW AMENDMENTS

DRIVE AGAINST CHANGE IN OHIO LAWS OUTLINED

Speaker Declares Solvency Of State In Danger If Proposals Pass

MUCH MONEY NECESSARY

Joint Meeting Of Dems And Republicans Planned In Circleville

A Circleville and Pickaway County campaign to combat the two Bigelow amendments to the Ohio Constitution to be voted on November 4 was opened Monday evening when the Circleville Kiwanis Club voted unanimously to condemn the proposals and pledged themselves to participate in a county movement against the plan.

The club's action was the first taken locally, but other civic and business organizations including Rotary, Chamber of Commerce, Retail Merchants Association and others are expected to join in the effort to balk the proposals, which their opponents charge would eventually bankrupt the state of Ohio.

The club was informed that the Pickaway County Democratic and Republican Executive and Central committees are contemplating action in each of the county's precincts to combat the threat of the Bigelow plan. A county-wide meeting to be addressed by anti-Bigelow workers is expected to be held prior to the election.

Speakers Present

Kiwanians heard an address Monday by Frank P. Johnson, a member of the Ohio Emergency Committee which is fighting the proposed constitutional amendments. Johnson told the Kiwanians that the Grange, Farm Bureau, Ohio Chamber of Commerce, Ohio Retailers Association and numerous other organizations are fighting Bigelow's plan. Even the Township organization is opposing it, Johnson said.

The speaker charged that the first of the two Bigelow amendments is for an old age pension which would threaten the solvency of the state and that the second would lower the number of signatures necessary to place an amendment to the Constitution or a law on the ballot at a general election, threatening Ohio's present form of representative government.

All citizens of Ohio 60 years or over who are retired from gainful occupation as wage earners are guaranteed $50 a month under the first proposal. Married couples would receive $80. The proposal, drawn by Herbert E. Bigelow, Cincinnati, ex-congressman, would subject all land worth $20,000 an acre a special two percent levy and would levy an additional income tax.

The Kiwanis speaker said that the state budget of Ohio for the year is $157,000,000 and that the Bigelow amendment would require $300,000,000 alone to pay all persons in the state above 60 the promised $50 a month.

Ambiguities Noted

The speaker said that the amendment as drawn by Bigelow was filled with ambiguities that would require expert legal study to figure out. "There are numerous questions unanswered," he told the Kiwanians, "but the one definite thing stands out: If the amendment is voted Ohio will inevitably become bankrupt."

The speaker declared that there are 695,000 persons in Ohio who can qualify for the subsidies. He charged that it would cost Ohio taxpayers upward of $300,000,000 a year; that the federal government will not contribute a dime to help finance the scheme because it is not based on need; that the amendment is an iron clad mortgage against every tax dollar collected now or in the future in Ohio; ed to pay the pipe, and that that the taxes proposed will not raise a fraction of the money needed when the legislature hunts money to pay the bills it will have to seize road and school money, stop Hypnotized?

CLAIMING that Dr. William Smith, drug manufacturer, wielded a hypnotic influence over her for 10 years, Peggy Ann Kent, three-time married 22-year-old daughter of the president of Twentieth Century-Fox films, filed an affidavit in New York supreme court that Dr. Smith be ordered to show cause why a judgment for $8,777.25 he obtained against her should not be vacated. Attorneys for Smith claimed Peggy's story was "preposterous."

welfare work, neglect cripples and dependent children and stop government service.

The second amendment, which Mr. Johnson declared was more sinister than the first would let down the bars so 100,000 signers can initiate an amendment or a law. The signatures may be picked up at large and could all be gathered in one city. The old plan requires signatures from 50 counties with not less than 5 percent from any one county.

Festival Discussed

The Kiwanians discussed the Collins Festival to be conducted November 20, November 27, December 4 and December 11, proceeds from which will go into the club's fund for underprivileged children. The Festival includes varied programs of entertainment to be conducted in Circleville High School auditorium.

It was also decided to put a float in the Pumpkin Show parades.

The club voted to send Don Walker, president-elect, and Luther Bower, secretary-elect, to the Ohio district convention in Cleveland on October 15, 16, 17 and 18 with Dan McClain, vice-president elect, and Paul D. Miller, treasurer-elect, as alternates. Mr. Bower was chosen as secretary after the Monday evening meeting when the new board of directors met.

The club's meeting was held in the American Hotel Coffee Shop.

County Husking Contest Certain

Pickaway County will have a corn husking contest this year. A committee meeting Monday night in the Farm Bureau home decided to stage the contest, but selection of the date and location had to be delayed.

F. K. Blair, county extension agent, said he expected to start a check this week of county farms to obtain a location for the contest. He stated the contest would probably be held the early part of the week just after Pumpkin Show. The annual Pumpkin Show is October 18-21.

The committee decided to give awards of $5, $3 and $2 to winners in the standing and shock events. The winners of the county contest will take part in the state contest to be held October 27 in Delaware County. Pickaway countyans who desire to participate in the county contest are asked to submit their name to Mr. Blair as soon as possible.

Those attending the meeting Monday night in addition to Mr. Blair were George Foreman, Mack Parrett, Jr., and R. G. Colville, Circleville; John Dunlap, Jr., Williamsport, and Willard Barch of near Ashville.

Mr. Blair said sufficient funds remained from the state corn

To add to the interest of the meeting those who attend are asked to bring with them one print, five by seven inches or larger, preferably their own work throughout. Suitable awards will be made to winners of first and second places. To be judged by those present.

Mr. Steddom said it had been his hope for some time to organize a camera club in the city. He believes there are sufficient persons interested in photography at present to have an active organization.
